

FACULTY ANNOUNCEMENT

23 June 2006

M. Sornarajah appointed C. J. Koh Professor

The Faculty is pleased to announce the appointment of Prof. M. Sornarajah as C. J. Koh Professor. The prestigious C. J. Koh Professorship was named after the late Mr. Koh Choon Joo, a philanthropist and lawyer whose gifts enabled the law school to renovate the law library (now renamed the C. J. Koh Law Library) and to endow a professorship in his name.

Prof. M. Sornarajah has been with the NUS law school for over two decades, and teaches and researches into international investment law. He was Head of the University of Tasmania Law School prior to joining NUS, and has been a Sterling Fellow at Yale Law School and a Research Fellow at the Centre for International Law, Cambridge. He is the author of The Pursuit of Nationalized Property (Martinus Nijhoff, The Hague, 1986); The Law of International Joint Ventures (Longman, 1994); The Settlement of Foreign Investment Disputes (Kluwer International, 2001) and The International Law on Foreign Investment (Cambridge University Press, 1996, 2nd ed., 2004). He is also on the Regional Panel of the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC).
