

FACULTY ANNOUNCEMENT

July 2008

NUS Law School welcomes Professor Kevin Gray

The Law School welcomes Professor Kevin Gray who joined the Faculty in July 2008. Professor Gray was elected a Fellow of the British Academy in 1999. He has been a Professor of Law in the University of Cambridge since 1993 and is Dean of Trinity College Cambridge. He was formerly Drapers Professor of Law in the University of London and a Senior Research Fellow in the University of Oxford. He has held visiting fellowships and professorships at the Australian National University (on numerous occasions) and at the Universities of Leiden, New South Wales, Osaka, Stellenbosch, Tasmania and Tilburg. He has written extensively on property law and theory, family law, human rights and the environment, and is a co-author of Gray and Gray, Elements of Land Law. In 2008 he was awarded a Major Research Fellowship by the Leverhulme Trust.