New Publication- The Derivative Action in Asia: A Comparative and Functional Approach

NUS Law congratulates Assistant Professor Dan Puchniak and Associate Professor Michael Ewing-Chow on their latest publication by Cambridge University Press.

The collection of essays was jointly edited by Puchniak, Ewing-Chow and Professor Harald Baum from Max Planck Institute for Comparative & International Private Law, Hamburg.

Asst Profs Wee Meng Seng and Umakanth Varottil from NUS Law also contributed a chapter each to the book.

About The Book

The book is a comparative examination of the derivative action in Asia which provides a framework for analysing its function, history and practical application. It also examines how derivative actions law works in practice within Asian jurisdictions. By debunking some critically important theories, this book provides the basis for an understanding of the derivative action in Asia and a re-examination of the regulation of the derivative action around the world.
