The Roger Fisher Prize in Negotiation

Professor Roger Fisher is one of the pioneers of modern negotiation practice and teaching. The Faculty of Law, National University of Singapore (NUS) is the first law school in Asia to establish and teach a Harvard Law School Program on Negotiation-style Negotiation Workshop in 1994 and Professor Roger Fisher's work is instrumental in influencing the design and pedagogy of the workshop.

To honor Professor Roger Fisher, his work and his influence, NUS Law has established the Roger Fisher Prize in Negotiation. This prize is made possible through the kind donations of donors in the USA through the NUS America Foundation, Inc., with the fundraising efforts led by CMPartners, LLC, a firm specializing in negotiation and conflict management training and consulting services (for more information about CMPartners, LLC, please visit www.cmpartners.com).

The Roger Fisher Prize will go to the top student in the Negotiation Workshop at NUS Law every academic year.
