The Role of Domestic and Supra-National Courts in Climate Change Governance

By Assistant Professor Jolene Lin

DATE & TIME: 3 MARCH 2010, WEDNESDAY, 10.30 AM TO 11.45 AM
VENUE: EXECUTIVE SEMINAR ROOM, LEVEL 3, BLOCK B
NUS, FACULTY OF LAW
469G BUKIT TIMAH ROAD

ABOUT THE SPEAKER
Jolene Lin teaches International Environmental Law and a course on inter-disciplinary approaches to the law, “Law, Economics, Regulation and Development” at the Faculty of Law, University of Hong Kong. Her research interests include climate change law, administrative law, and environmental law. She is an associate member of the Asia-Pacific Centre for Environmental Law (APCEL).

ABSTRACT
In her talk, Prof Lin will examine the body of case law in Australia, the European Union, and some supranational adjudicative bodies which comprise a 'climate change docket'. She proposes a typology and theoretical framework for analyzing the emergence of climate change litigation and what this says about the role of courts and adjudicative bodies in climate change law and regulation.
