Asian Law Institute Founding Members

- Chulalongkorn University, Faculty of Law (THAILAND)
- East China University of Political Science and Law (CHINA)
- The University of Hong Kong, Faculty of Law (HONG KONG)
- University of Indonesia, Faculty of Law (INDONESIA)
- International Islamic University of Malaysia, Ahmad Ibrahim Kulliyyah of Laws (MALAYSIA)
- Kyushu University, Faculty of Law (JAPAN)
- University of Malaya, Faculty of Law (MALAYSIA)
- National Law School of India University (INDIA)
- National Law University, Delhi (INDIA)
- National University of Singapore, Faculty of Law (SINGAPORE)
- National Taiwan University, College of Law (TAIWAN)
- Peking University Law School (CHINA)
- Universitas Pelita Harapan, Faculty of Law (INDONESIA)
- University of the Philippines, College of Law (PHILIPPINES)
- Seoul National University School of Law (SOUTH KOREA)
- The University of Tokyo, Graduate Schools for Law and Politics (JAPAN)

In addition, the ASLI membership includes more than 80 other law schools.

For the full list of members, please refer to: https://law.nus.edu.sg/asli/members.html

Membership Benefits

Each member institution is entitled to:
- Receive copies of the Asian Journal of Comparative Law (AsJCL) (2 issues annually).
- Participate in the open forum of members at the annual ASLI conference.

In addition, faculty members from member institutions will have the following benefits:
- The right to apply, on a competitive basis, for an ASLI fellowship with tenure of up to two months at the NUS Law School. NUS will provide housing and a stipend.
- A SGD100 discount on the registration fee for the annual conference.

How to Join ASLI

Membership in the Asian Law Institute is open to any law school, law faculty or other institution which offers at least two courses on Asian law (including domestic law within an Asian jurisdiction) or conducts research on Asian law, on a regular basis.

For details on how to join ASLI membership: https://law.nus.edu.sg/asli/how_to_join.html

Annual Membership Fees

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Category</th>
<th>Amount Payable</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Non-listed Jurisdictions</td>
<td>SGD200 per institution</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Listed Jurisdictions*</td>
<td>SGD300 per institution</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The annual membership subscription is renewable on 30 May of each year.

* Please check the ASLI website for the listed jurisdictions.
The Asian Law Institute (ASLI)

The Asian Law Institute (ASLI) was established in 2003 through the efforts of several leading Asian law schools to foster Asian legal scholarship and to facilitate greater interaction amongst legal scholars in Asia as well as legal scholars outside Asia working on Asian law.

It prides itself as an indigenous Institute of Asian law, created in Asia by Asian law schools and open to the world. The acronym “ASLI”, which means “indigenous” or “original” in several Asian languages, reflects the essence of the institution which aims to be a truly home-grown Asian law institute in Asia.

Annual Signature Conference

ASLI organises an annual signature conference hosted by founding member institutions on a rotational basis. These annual conferences examine contemporary legal issues of interest to Asian countries and gather scholars and experts from Asia and beyond.

ASLI welcomes legal scholars to attend and present papers at its annual conference, both from ASLI founding and member institutions as well as from other institutions within and outside Asia. The conference is open to all whether or not they present a paper.

The conference provides excellent opportunities for scholars of Asian law to meet and exchange ideas and to form closer working and personal relationships.

ASLI Visiting Fellows Programme

Each academic year, up to eight ASLI Fellows will be invited to visit NUS Law for up to two months on a fully funded basis. While at NUS Law, the ASLI Fellows are expected to conduct research on legal issues of interest to their respective countries or to Asia in general. Each Fellow is expected to present a seminar paper during his or her fellowship. He or she will be expected to contribute to the ASLI Working Paper Series within a month after the end of the fellowship.

In addition, a Fellow may be invited to teach as a guest lecturer in a course or courses offered at NUS Law. Although the fellowship should ideally be for a two-month period, it is possible that, because of immigration restrictions, the fellowship may be limited to one month.

ASLI has six founding member schools that are among the very top law schools in Asia (see list on back cover). Their representatives sit on the Board of Governors which meets annually. The Faculty of Law of the National University of Singapore (NUS Law), which led the initiative, continues to provide administrative and financial support for ASLI, including hosting its Secretariat at NUS Law.

Each year, ASLI organises one of the largest annual conferences in the world. In 2018, the annual conference held at Seoul National University attracted over 450 abstracts, which made the selection process for invited presenters highly competitive. ASLI also organises other thematic conferences and workshops in Singapore and elsewhere in Asia. In addition, ASLI welcomes legal scholars from non-Asian systems as ASLI Fellows. These Fellows spend two months in Singapore researching, writing and presenting the fruits of their research.

ASLI Visiting Fellows Programme

Each academic year, up to eight ASLI Fellows will be invited to visit NUS Law for up to two months on a fully funded basis. While at NUS Law, the ASLI Fellows are expected to conduct research on legal issues of interest to their respective countries or to Asia in general. Each Fellow is expected to present a seminar paper during his or her fellowship. He or she will be expected to contribute to the ASLI Working Paper Series within a month after the end of the fellowship.

In addition, a Fellow may be invited to teach as a guest lecturer in a course or courses offered at NUS Law. Although the fellowship should ideally be for a two-month period, it is possible that, because of immigration restrictions, the fellowship may be limited to one month.

ASLI Visiting Fellows Programme

Each academic year, up to eight ASLI Fellows will be invited to visit NUS Law for up to two months on a fully funded basis. While at NUS Law, the ASLI Fellows are expected to conduct research on legal issues of interest to their respective countries or to Asia in general. Each Fellow is expected to present a seminar paper during his or her fellowship. He or she will be expected to contribute to the ASLI Working Paper Series within a month after the end of the fellowship.

In addition, a Fellow may be invited to teach as a guest lecturer in a course or courses offered at NUS Law. Although the fellowship should ideally be for a two-month period, it is possible that, because of immigration restrictions, the fellowship may be limited to one month.

ASLI Publications

Asian Journal of Comparative Law (AsJCL) (Cambridge University Press)

The Asian Journal of Comparative Law (AsJCL), launched in 2006, is the leading forum for research and discussion of the law and legal systems of Asia. It embraces work that is theoretical, empirical, socio-legal, doctrinal or comparative that relates to one or more Asian legal systems, as well as work that compares one or more Asian legal systems with non-Asian systems. The Journal seeks articles which display an intimate knowledge of Asian legal systems, and thus provides a window into the way they work in practice.

The AsJCL is an initiative of the Asian Law Institute (ASLI) and is published semi-annually by Cambridge University Press. With an increasing high volume of exceptional submissions and an acceptance rate of less than 1 out of every 10 submissions, the Journal is fortunate to be able to publish only the highest quality Asian legal scholarship. In addition, the Journal takes pride in having an unparalleled team of editors and advisors based primarily in Asia who are leaders domestically and internationally in a wide variety of domains and jurisdictions. This team actively engages in the journal and meets yearly at the ASLI annual conference to ensure that the Journal remains at the forefront of Asian law.

Information on our publications and submission guidelines can be found at: www.AsJCL.org.

To receive the latest updates on the Journal, follow us on our Facebook Page at: https://www.facebook.com/ASJCL/