

Panel Discussion: Careers in Intellectual Property Law

Opportunities in IP law exist in law firms and corporations, in the public sector, and in academia. In this session, we are fortunate to have our own Professor David Tan, along with 3 of our alumni, Tony Yeo, Terri Koh and Diyanah Baharudin, come together to offer you insights on the different careers in IP they have chosen, and to share their perspectives on what you can do to prepare yourself if you aspire to a career within this vibrant and fast growing industry.

Date: 11 October 2023, Wednesday
Time: 1:00PM to 3:00PM (Lunch will be provided)
Venue: Block B, 4th Level, Seminar Room 4-4
 National University of Singapore, Faculty of Law

About the Speakers:

Tony Yeo
 Managing Director, Intellectual Property
 Director, Dispute Resolution
 Head, Healthcare & Life Sciences
 Drew & Napier LLC

Tony Yeo is the Managing Director of Drew & Napier’s Intellectual Property (IP) practice, and a Director in its Dispute Resolution department. He also heads the firm’s Healthcare & Life Sciences practice. Tony’s expertise lies in litigation, in particular, IP litigation and enforcement comprising patent, trade mark and copyright. He was one of the select few IP practitioners appointed by the Intellectual Property Office of Singapore (IPOS) as an IP Adjudicator to adjudicate disputes at IPOS for a two-year term from April 2019. Tony is also the President of the International Association for the Protection of Intellectual Property (AIPPI) – Singapore Group.

Terri Koh
 Deputy Director, Registry of Trade Marks
 Senior Legal Counsel, Intellectual Property
 Office of Singapore (IPOS)

Terri is a Deputy Director with the Registry of Trade Marks and Senior Legal Counsel with the Legal Department at the Intellectual Property Office of Singapore (IPOS). Called to the Singapore Bar in 2009, she is an IP law specialist, having spent her entire career in this field. In IPOS, her portfolio requires her to manage trade mark examination, advise internal clients and public agencies on trade mark and geographical indications law and policy, and is responsible for any legislative reform in this area.

Diyanah Baharudin
 Counsel, Global Content Protection and IP
 Policy, Netflix

Diyanah is legally trained by profession and is a member of the Singapore Bar. She is currently part of the global content protection team at Netflix where she is responsible for identifying and advising the business on issues relating to copyright infringement of Netflix content online. She also advises Netflix on the impact of upcoming copyright and platform regulations globally with a focus on the APAC region.

Prior to Netflix she worked with the Singapore government where she took on various roles: as an administrative judge for trademarks, an in-house legal advisor for the Singapore IP Office, as well as a trade negotiator for IP issues. She led the Singapore delegation that saw the conclusion of the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP) agreement and was Singapore’s delegate to the World Intellectual Property Organisation (WIPO) on copyright matters.

Diyanah also spent her formative years of work at one of Singapore’s oldest law firms, doing both civil and criminal litigation work, as well as advisory work for both local and international clients. She is also a co-author of a book chapter in International Intellectual Property and the ASEAN Way: Pathways to Interoperability, published by Cambridge University Press.
