We are extremely grateful to the generosity shown to NUS Law as we strive to build a better law school and provide financial support to a wider group of students. Another way of helping future generations of law students is to leave a legacy gift. Your single gift today can make a difference for many years to come.

If you are considering supporting us in your will, please contact Prof Simon Chesterman (+65 6156201 or chesterman@nus.edu.sg) or Ms Trina Gan (+65 6601 2248 or trina.gan@nus.edu.sg) and we will be happy to discuss your options with you.

For it is in giving that we receive. NUS Law’s alumni are both our past and our future. The achievements of our alumni magnify our reputation nationally and internationally; that reputation in turn creates more opportunities for each new generation of students. Your financial contributions also support our efforts to offer the best legal education possible, while ensuring that no deserving student is left behind. Donations to our research programmes help us in our goal of making Singapore a true global legal centre.

We are fortunate to receive strong backing from government, but to be one of the best law schools in the world we must look to our alumni for additional help. You have not let us down. Over the past few years, the number of alumni contributing to the faculty has doubled, with an even greater increase in the amounts given.

If you have already made a gift to NUS Law this year, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you on behalf of all my colleagues and our students. If you are still deciding, this brochure shows the many ways in which you can help our students to achieve their dreams, and be part of making NUS Law Asia’s Global Law School.
