Master of Laws in International Arbitration & Dispute Resolution (LL.M. (IADR))

About the National University of Singapore, Faculty of Law (NUS Law):

NUS Law is widely regarded to be one of the premier global law schools and as Asia’s leading law school. Staffed by an outstanding permanent faculty diverse in origin and qualifications, NUS Law is dedicated to building a vibrant community and creating an environment that facilitates critical thinking and reflection on the fundamental legal issues confronting our interconnected world. In the 2018 Quacquarelli Symonds (QS) World University Rankings for law schools, NUS Law was ranked 15th in the world and top in Asia.

About the LL.M. (IADR):

The LL.M. (IADR), which was launched in August 2016, seeks to nurture lawyers and scholars to conduct rigorous and independent inquiries into relevant dispute resolution issues, to promote transnational approaches to arbitration, to articulate critical and impactful insights, and to propose solutions beneficial to the local and global communities. This new specialised LL.M. program enables a student to acquire an in-depth understanding of the laws and practices of international arbitration and dispute resolution. It has the advantage of being located in Singapore which is the one of the preferred locations for arbitration in the world, and where many top arbitrators and academics often converge. The director of the program is Associate Professor Gary Bell.

In order to obtain the LL.M. (IADR), students will have to complete a total of 40-44 course credits in two semesters, out of which 24 credits (5 or 6 courses) must be in the specialisation field. The remaining credits may be chosen from an unrestricted range of electives or from the specialisation field.

About the Courses:

NUS Law offers a broad and diverse range of over 120 elective courses. Students enrolled in the LL.M. (IADR) are eligible to choose up to 16 credits of unrestricted elective courses from clusters such as Asian Legal Studies, Corporate & Financial Services Law, Intellectual Property & Technology Law, International & Comparative Law and Maritime Law. The compulsory IADR courses (totaling 11 course credits) are: International Commercial Arbitration, International Dispute Settlement, and Topics in International Arbitration and Dispute Settlement.

Some of the elective courses of the IADR specialisation likely to be offered next year are: Advanced Issues in the Law & Practice of International Arbitration, Advanced Practicum in International Arbitration, Arbitration & Dispute Resolution in China, Comparative Evidence in International Arbitration, Conflict of Laws in International Commercial Arbitration, Energy Arbitration, Interim Measures in International Arbitration, International Arbitration in Asian Centres, International Investment Law, International Investment Law & Arbitration, Mediation/Conciliation of Inter- & Investor-State Disputes, The Evolution of International Arbitration, Negotiation and Mediation. The program also offers a selection of carefully curated “super-intensive” 18-hour courses taught during the mid-semester breaks (September and March) by international visitors. In Academic Year 2018-2019, these courses will be taught by Professors Gary Born, Fabien Gélinas, Bernard Hanotiau and Gabrielle Kaufmann-Kohler.
Admission & Tuition Fees:

Graduate online application period is from 1 October 2018 to 1 December 2018. For application details, visit: http://www.law.nus.edu.sg/admissions/app_periods_forms.html. The admission requirements for the LL.M. (IADR) are:
1. A good Bachelor’s degree in Law
2. Minimum TOEFL iBT score: 100*
   * A minimum TOEFL (paper-based) score of 600 and IELTS of minimum 7.0 will be considered, but we strongly prefer the iBT.

The fee (per annum) for the full-time LL.M. (IADR) is S$35,050 (Academic Year 2017/18).

Double Degree Program - NUS Master of Laws (International Arbitration and Dispute Resolution) (LL.M. (IADR)) & University of Geneva LL.M. in International Dispute Settlement (MIDS)

About the Double Degree Program:

The Geneva LL.M. in International Dispute Settlement (MIDS) is a one-year full-time graduate degree program providing the opportunity for an in-depth and high-profile study of international dispute settlement from a broad range of perspectives. It is one of the most highly regarded LL.M. degrees in the specialised field of international arbitration and dispute resolution.

This Double Degree Program (DDP) has the special advantage of giving students the “best of both worlds” – students will learn different approaches to dispute resolution, gain practical skills and have exposure to practitioners and institutions in Asia as well as in Europe, as well as in common law (Singapore) and civil law (Geneva) jurisdictions.

Students may obtain two LL.M. degrees in 18 months upon successful completion. Students can spend one year at NUS Law and 6 months at the University of Geneva or vice versa.

Students commencing the DDP at NUS Law will pay the tuition fee for the full-year LL.M. (IADR) to NUS and another fee (lower than the fee for a one-year full-time program) to University of Geneva while reading the second degree (MIDS). Similarly, a student commencing the DDP at Geneva will pay the tuition fee for the first year to Geneva for the MIDS degree, and a reciprocal discounted fee to NUS Law for the next 6 months when completing the LL.M. (IADR) at NUS Law.

Admission:

Graduate online application period is from 1 October 2018 to 1 December 2018. Students who wish to commence in Singapore must be first admitted to NUS Law for the LL.M. (IADR). Students shall have to fulfil the admission requirements for both the NUS LL.M. (IADR) and the Geneva MIDS.
