OVERVIEW

In 2021, Singapore's Parliament declared climate change to be a global emergency. This was a milestone in Singapore's rapid law and policy-making towards the goal of net-zero greenhouse gas emissions by 2050. This goal is enshrined in international law and Singapore has committed in its Paris Agreement Nationally Determined Contribution (NDC) to achieve it. At the same time, Singapore has identified growth opportunities in the transition towards a low-carbon economy. It aspires to be a regional carbon trading and services hub.

Singapore's growing body of climate change law features climate change disclosure requirements for major corporations and a Carbon Pricing Act which is accompanied by an International Carbon Credit (ICC) framework. Company directors are being advised to consider climate impacts carefully in their decision-making at the risk of failing to fulfill their legal duties. Regulators are also stepping up against greenwashing to protect consumers and businesses.

This course is designed to provide a comprehensive overview of this rapidly developing regulatory landscape that lawyers and their clients have to navigate.

CORE FOCUS

- Understanding the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change and the Paris Agreement
- Nature-based Climate Solutions and Integrity in Voluntary Carbon Market Standards
- Companies and Climate Change: Regulatory Issues and Directors' Duties
- Climate Litigation
- Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG): Latest Legal Developments
