

Centre for Asian Legal Studies – Thammasat University Faculty of Law Peer Learning Initiative (“CATPLI”)

1st Workshop “An Introduction to the Basics of Singapore Contract Law”

12 March–23 April 2022
Every Saturday, from 1:30pm to 3:30pm (BKK Time)

Centre for Asian Legal Studies – Thammasat University Faculty of Law Peer Learning Initiative (CATPLI)

The Centre for Asian Legal Studies (CALs), NUS Faculty of Law and Thammasat University Faculty of Law are pleased to announce the Centre for Asian Legal Studies - Thammasat University Faculty of Law Peer Learning Initiative (“CATPLI”), a student-led project with the long-term goal of promoting direct knowledge exchange and academic collaboration between the students of both faculties.

CATPLI's first workshop titled “An Introduction to the Basics of Singapore Contract Law”, seeks to introduce students of Thammasat University Faculty of Law to the basic principles of contract law in Singapore, while providing NUS Law students with a platform to consolidate their knowledge in this regard. In light of the structural differences between the civil law system of Thailand and the common law system of Singapore, participants of this workshop can expect a meaningful discussion of some of the doctrinal differences present in the contract laws of both jurisdictions, thereby fostering a deeper sense of appreciation for each jurisdiction's approach to contract law, with the primary focus on Singapore contract law.

Workshop Dates:

There will be a total of seven online sessions in the inaugural workshop. The first session will be held on 12 March 2022, with subsequent sessions on 19 and 26 March 2022; as well as 2, 9, 16, and 23 April 2022. This course is only open to TU Law and other Thai law students (by invitation).

These online sessions will cover:

1. Introduction to the Singapore Legal System
2. Formation of Contract
3. Terms of Contract
4. Breach of Contract & Remedies
5. Frustration & Mistake
6. Misrepresentation, Duress, Undue Influence & Unconscionability
7. Practical Session
