The UNCITRAL
Model Law and
Asian Arbitration Laws

Implementation and Comparisons

Edited by Gary F. Bell

In the Asia-Pacific, thirty-eight jurisdictions have adopted the UNCITRAL Model Law on International Commercial Arbitration. Even when jurisdictions adopt some provisions of the Model Law verbatim, their courts may have interpreted these provisions in a manner inconsistent with their goals and with how they are interpreted internationally.

This book looks at how the text and the principles of the Model Law have been implemented (or not) in key Asian jurisdictions. Most of the jurisdictions covered in this book have declared that they have adopted the Model Law but often with significant.

“The chapters of this book provide countless valuable insights. The challenges of interpreting the Model Law and the instrument’s benefits. More than anything else, this book confirms the critical importance of international law to international arbitration – and vice versa. The uniform international standards prescribed by the Convention and the Model Law have been essential to the success of international arbitration.

This book helps facilitate that continued efficacy and growth of international arbitration by focusing attention on both past achievements and topics for future improvement.”

The UNCITRAL Model Law and Asian Arbitration Laws Implementation and Comparisons

Editor: Gary F. Bell, National University of Singapore

In the Asia-Pacific, thirty-eight jurisdictions have adopted the UNCITRAL Model Law on International Commercial Arbitration. This book looks at how the text and the principles of the Model Law have been implemented (or not) in key Asian jurisdictions. Most of the jurisdictions covered in this book have declared that they have adopted the Model Law but often with significant modifications. Even when jurisdictions adopt some provisions of the Model Law verbatim, their courts may have interpreted these provisions in a manner inconsistent with their goals and with how they are interpreted internationally. When a jurisdiction has not adopted the Model Law, the chapter compares its legislation to the Model Law to determine whether it is consistent with its principles. Each chapter follows the structure of the Model Law allowing the reader to easily compare the arbitration laws of different jurisdictions on each topic.

- Provides an overview of the most relevant arbitration laws in Asia
- Each chapter closely follows the structure of the Model Law, covering the same topics in the same order, allowing readers to compare different laws easily
- Compares the domestic law of important jurisdictions that have not adopted the Model Law, following the same structure
- Explores how the Model Law is implemented in each jurisdiction and how it is often interpreted very differently in some countries
