ABOUT THE SEMINAR

An enforcement regime that results in delays or excessive costs is likely to affect the availability and the cost of credit. A secured creditor must have a choice to exercise post-default rights either judicially or extra-judicially. Extra-judicial enforcement mechanisms provide speedy recovery of assets and satisfaction of secured creditor’s claims. The use of alternative dispute resolution mechanisms (e.g. mediation and arbitration) in jurisdictions where the rule of law is weak and enforcement processes before the courts tend to be long and burdensome is recommended by the international financial institutions and provided in international secured transactions texts (e.g. UNCITRAL Model Law on Secured Transactions, OAS Inter-American Model Law on Secured Transactions). On the other hand, in jurisdictions with well-functioning enforcement systems alternative dispute resolution mechanisms may provide a more cost-effective route than litigation. Mediation and arbitration are recognised methods for resolving commercial disputes and used increasingly over the last decades at both national and international level. However, their use in the enforcement of security interest and insolvency is disputed. This creates a number of conceptual problems including the rights of third parties and the use of arbitration in insolvency disputes. This seminar considers the use of mediation and arbitration in the enforcement of security interests and insolvency, and provides a number of recommendations.

ABOUT THE CENTRE FOR BANKING & FINANCE LAW

The Centre for Banking & Finance Law (CBFL) at the Faculty of Law, National University of Singapore, seeks to generate scholarship and promote thinking about the vibrancy, robustness and soundness of the banking sector, capital markets and other financial services. Through the research our scholars undertake and the events we organise, we seek to create and share knowledge, to engage stakeholders in an exchange of ideas, and to enhance the appreciation of legal and regulatory issues. We aim to bring greater theoretical and analytical clarity to these issues, to examine their policy impact, and to be a catalyst for ideas on how to improve banking and financial systems at the national, regional and global levels.
