NUS Law

The National University of Singapore Faculty of Law (NUS Law) is widely regarded as Asia's leading law school. Staffed by an outstanding permanent faculty diverse in origin and qualifications, NUS Law is dedicated to building a vibrant community and creating an environment that facilitates critical thinking and reflection on the fundamental legal issues confronting our interconnected world. Located in Singapore, which for more than a century has been a commercial hub at the crossroads of Asia, NUS Law is very much Asia's Global Law School.

Since 1957, the school's curriculum has been infused with perspectives from other jurisdictions and disciplines. This tradition has accelerated in recent years, providing a legal education that is comparative, international and multidisciplinary. NUS Law hosts many visiting faculty and students from every continent, offering a lively, cosmopolitan atmosphere both inside and outside the classroom. The strength of the NUS Law curriculum lies in the broad and diverse range of subjects it offers. In addition to a rigorous core curriculum, students can choose from more than a hundred electives in areas such as Asian legal studies, corporate and financial services law, intellectual property and technology law, international and comparative law, international arbitration and dispute resolution, and maritime law.

MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

As Asia's global law school, NUS Law offers a graduate programme that is an integral part of that vision. Every year, we welcome lawyers from dozens of countries around the world to Singapore—one of the most dynamic and open economies in the world, and the gateway for many multinational corporations to Asia.

By joining one of our Master of Laws (LLM) programmes, you will be part of a global conversation on the study and practice of law and be taught by experts in the field, alongside future leaders of the profession.

NUS Law's LLM programmes offer an opportunity to upgrade qualifications, to develop new skills, and to form professional and personal connections that will last a lifetime. Specialisations offer a programme of study tailored to develop expertise in a particular area, whether it is Asian legal studies, corporate and financial services law, intellectual property and technology law, international and comparative law, international arbitration and dispute resolution, or maritime law. Or you can design your own LLM programme, choosing from more than 100 electives offered by the NUS Law faculty and visiting professors.

Students who want to integrate their NUS degree with a China experience should consider the LLM in International Business Law, which combines the first semester in Singapore with the second in Shanghai, offered in partnership with the East China University of Political Science and Law.

Graduate school is much more than lectures and a library. Singapore is a vibrant, multicultural society with a rich heritage of architecture, botanic life and, above all, wonderful food! Many students also use their time in Singapore to explore the region. We encourage you to make the most of your time with us, both academically and socially.

Whatever your reason for considering a graduate degree, I hope you will take the time to explore what NUS Law has to offer.

ASIA'S GLOBAL LAW SCHOOL

A Brief History

NUS Law is part of the National University of Singapore (NUS), the oldest tertiary institution in Singapore. The roots of NUS Law lie in the establishment of the Department of Law in the then University of Malaya in 1956. The first law students were admitted to the Bukit Timah Campus of the University in 1957. In 1959, the Department attained Faculty status with Professor Lionel Astor ("Lee") Sheridan serving as the founding Dean.

The pioneer class of law students graduated in 1961, counting among its most illustrious members Professor Tommy Koh (Ambassador-at-Large and former Dean), former Chief Justice Chan Sek Keong, former Dean Thio Su Mien, Emeritus Professor Koh Kheng Lian, former Solicitor-General Koh Eng Tian and former Police Commissioner Goh Yong Hong.

With the decision of the Government of Singapore and the Federation of Malaya that the Singapore Division and the Kuala Lumpur Division of the University of Malaya should become autonomous national universities in their respective countries, the University of Singapore, with its campus in Bukit Timah, was established on 1 January 1962.

In 1980, the University of Singapore and Nanyang University (Nantah) merged to form NUS. With that, the Faculty of Law became part of the modern NUS.

"Our ambition is to continue to be the best law school in Asia and one of the best in the world. This is where civilisations of the world meet and co-mingle. We offer faculty and students a unique multicultural milieu for study, research and mutual learning."

Professor Tommy Koh Class of 1961 Ambassador-at-Large Former Dean of NUS Law

LLM PROGRAMMES

The NUS Law Master of Laws (LLM) by coursework programmes offer a wide variety of electives and are taught by an internationally distinguished academic faculty.

Structure

Students may enrol in the LLM programmes without a specification, or select any of the seven specialisations on offer.

General LLM

Specialisations:

No specialisation

Degree Requirements:

Students may opt from the outset to take any 40-44 units (8-10 courses) and graduate with an LLM degree with no specialisation. This option affords maximum flexibility in course selection according to the student's individual preferences and interests.

Specialised LLM

Specialisations:

- Asian Legal Studies
- Corporate and Financial Services Law
- Intellectual Property and Technology Law
- International and Comparative Law
- International Arbitration and Dispute Resolution
- International Business Law
- Maritime Law

Degree Requirements:

To graduate with an LLM degree with the specific specialisation indicated on their degree scrolls, students will have to complete at least 24 units (5-6 courses) including compulsory courses that are specific to the relevant specialisation, out of a possible 40-44 units (8-10 courses).

Programme Duration

- The NUS Law LLM is a one-year programme conducted on a full-time basis.
- For LLM in Maritime Law, students may choose to study for the degree part-time over two academic years. Classes may be conducted on weekdays during office hours.

MESSAGE FROM THE VICE DEAN (GRADUATE STUDIES)

The NUS Law LLM programmes provide students with a vibrant and conducive environment to enrich themselves academically in a global setting, and equip them with tools to carve out a career path. The wide-ranging course offerings across various specialisations, a vast library resource-base for those in relentless pursuit of research, constant campus conversations on issues of contemporary relevance, and the camaraderie of fellow students from Singapore, Asia and the rest of the world make for an impactful intellectual and personal journey.

NUS Law also has a very diverse faculty. Many faculty members have come to Singapore from different parts of the world, and they work alongside Singaporean scholars who have often gone abroad to undertake part of their education before returning home to teach. Intellectually, faculty members have a broad range of expertise across many areas of law—public and private, applied and theoretical—with a special accent on law in Asian contexts. In addition, each year we invite a significant number of professors from leading universities around the world who offer intensive courses to widen the spectrum of options that students can choose from. We also offer strong career support, as well as connections to practitioners and an extensive alumni network, along with a dedicated faculty-led team for student welfare.

We look forward to welcoming you to NUS Law!

Vice Dean (Graduate Studies) Faculty of Law National University of Singapore

LLM SPECIALISATIONS

Asian Legal Studies

This pioneering specialisation—one of only a few offered worldwide—invites students to explore the laws, legal systems and traditions of South, Southeast and East Asia, one of the most dynamic regions of the 21st century. Whether their interests lie in commercial law, constitutional law or international law, students will have a unique opportunity to study how these areas are practised and transformed across Asia's diverse jurisdictions. They will examine law in its broader social, political and cultural context, gaining insight into how legal institutions interact with regional trends in trade, governance and development. Ideal for those pursuing internationally oriented careers, this specialisation equips students with the tools to navigate and shape complex legal landscapes.

Corporate and Financial Service Law

This specialisation includes electives in company law and corporate finance, financial services and securities regulation, banking law (domestic and international) and taxation law. Students will acquire substantive and theoretical understanding of, and practical expertise in, the subjects involved. Singapore, as a leading commercial hub of Asia, is an ideal place for the pursuit of these subjects.

Intellectual Property and Technology Law

This specialisation focuses on legal issues raised by the rapid advancement of science and technology. The courses offered include traditional intellectual property law courses, as well as others specifically focused on the impact of technologies on the law, such as coding for the law, biomedical law, entertainment law, law and technology, artificial intelligence, and information science and the law.

International and Camparative Law

This specialisation offers a good mix of public and private international law and comparative law courses. There are courses that focus on trade, investment and commercial issues, as well as public international law, human rights and environmental protection. There are also specialised courses offering a comparative focus on the laws of major territories such as China, the United States, the European Union, India, Indonesia, Korea and Vietnam.

In a world of tumult and global competition, this specialisation provides a background for lawyers to assist governments, large companies and societies to understand and respond to international events and trends.

International Arbitration and Dispute Resolution

This specialisation enables an in-depth understanding of the laws of international arbitration and dispute resolution, and benefits from Singapore's leading edge in the field of arbitration globally. Students will have access to some of the top arbitrators and academics in the field. The courses cover a mix of public international law and private international law. The increasing opportunities for offshore legal work both in the region and in the world also make the courses offered in this programme particularly relevant to the field.

International Business Law

In collaboration with East China University of Political Science and Law (ECUPL) in Shanghai, NUS Law has offered a specialised LLM in International Business Law since 2005. The classes are conducted entirely in English. Students enrolled in this specialisation study in NUS Law in Semester 1 and in ECUPL in Semester 2. It is the first overseas degree programme by NUS Law. Students who successfully complete the programme are awarded an LLM (International Business Law) degree conferred by NUS (this is not a joint degree).

Maritime Law

This specialisation enables students to obtain knowledge of maritime and shipping law, including admiralty law and maritime arbitration; carriage of goods by sea; charterparties; international commercial arbitration; international regulation of shipping; the domestic and international sale of goods; trade finance law; marine insurance law; the law relating to maritime casualties arising at sea; the law of the sea; and international and comparative oil and gas law.

International students study full-time over one academic year. Students working for companies based in Singapore may choose to study for the degree part-time over two academic years. This part-time flexibility is also open to students admitted to the Graduate Diploma in Maritime Law and Arbitration, designed for professionals working in the industry who do not have a law degree. Singapore citizens and permanent residents may be eligible for tuition-fee support from the MPA Maritime Cluster Fund (MCF).

DOUBLE DEGREE PROGRAMMES

In addition to the specialisations, NUS Law also offers the following programmes:

Law and Public Policy (LLM-MPP/MPA)

NUS Law and the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy offer two double degree programmes: an LLM and Master in Public Administration (MPA) and an LLM and Master in Public Policy (MPP). These aim to provide students of law and public administration and public policy broad exposure to the issues and challenges that lawyers and leaders of public institutions face. The LLM-MPP may be obtained in 24 months, and the LLM-MPA in 18 months.

NUS LLM in International Arbitration and Dispute Resolution – University of Geneva LLM in International Dispute Settlement

NUS Law and the University of Geneva offer a double degree programme: the NUS LLM in International Arbitration and Dispute Resolution and the University of Geneva LLM in International Dispute Settlement.

The Geneva LLM in International Dispute Settlement is a one-year full-time graduate degree programme providing the opportunity for an in-depth and high-profile study of international dispute settlement from a broad range of perspectives. It is one of the most highly regarded LLM degrees in the specialised field of international arbitration and dispute resolution.

This double degree programme has the special advantage of giving students the "best of both worlds"—students will learn different approaches to dispute resolution, gain practical skills and have exposure to practitioners and institutions in both Asia and Europe, as well as in common law (Singapore) and civil law (Switzerland) jurisdictions. Students may obtain both LLM degrees in 18 months.

Students can spend one year at NUS Law and six months at the University of Geneva or vice versa.

VISITING PROFESSORS

Every year, NUS Law hosts over two dozen visiting professors. They come from some of the top universities in the world including Harvard, Yale, Oxford, Cambridge, the LSE, Melbourne, Seoul National University and University of Hong Kong, among many others. Our international visiting faculty conduct classes on their areas of expertise during their time with us and they add to the cosmopolitan nature of our law school by bringing their own unique perspectives to the legal education offered by NUS Law.

Professor Adrienne Stone (Melbourne Law School) delivered the Chan Sek Keong Professorial Lecture in Public Law in 2025

"NUS Law offers a variety of practical international arbitration courses taught by eminent professors from all around the globe. I am striving for participation in moot courts on behalf of NUS Law which is famous for raising top mooters. I believe studying here will prompt my career in dispute resolution and will give me opportunities to network with legal practitioners in Asia. I am also looking forward to experiencing NUS Law's dynamic extracurricular life, as I interact with peers from different cultures."

ELECTIVES

One distinctive and formidable strength of NUS Law is the broad and diverse range of elective courses that we offer. Students choose courses from many clusters or specialisations.

While the courses range from theoretical to practical, the overriding objective is to provide students with a liberal education through the medium of law that will allow them to maximise their potential to the fullest degree. Students enrolled in a particular LLM specialisation may take some courses from other specialisations too.

Accordingly, many of the courses integrate relevant cross-disciplinary and policy perspectives to give students a deep and rich understanding of how the law operates within society and the factors that influence the development and application of the law.

ACCOMMODATION

Currently, NUS Law is located at the Bukit Timah Campus, adjacent to the Singapore Botanic Gardens. This is the University's historic, conservation campus, which hosts NUS Law and the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy. With effect from January 2026, NUS Law will be located at University Town on the Kent Ridge campus. Graduate students may apply for on-campus accommodation, subject to availability. More details on housing are available at the Office of Student Affairs website at http://nus.edu.sg/osa/.

RESEARCH CENTRES AND INSTITUTES

NUS Law is home to various centres and institutes that cater to specialised areas within the international legal infrastructure. Our centres and institutes attract a wide range of experts to join the conversation on important areas of law. The ideas and solutions advanced in these incubators of legal innovation have a broad impact in Singapore and around the region. The centres and institutes also provide students with valuable research opportunities and the chance to work directly with faculty members on projects at the core of their scholarly agendas.

Asia-Pacific Centre for Environmental Law (APCEL)

APCEL was established in cooperation with the World Conservation Union-Commission on Environmental Law and the United Nations Environment Programme, in response to the call in Agenda 21 to build capacity in environmental law and promote environmental consciousness.

APCEL has pioneered a wide-ranging programme of teaching, research and outreach to galvanise the use of legal mechanisms to address climate change, biodiversity loss, and plastics pollution. Recent projects include research on the Paris Rulebook, sustainability standards, and environmental courts and tribunals.
